New theme art kit

Fruit Picnic is a cozy, cute merge-puzzle game (like 2048). Two matching tiles slide together and become the next tile, so the art tells a little story that grows from tiny to grand. This kit has everything needed to draw a new theme.

The story

Pick a theme and plan 14 tiles that grow from small and simple to big and special. Players should feel a little reward each time a new one appears.

- Small (2–16): tiny, simple things. These show up constantly, so keep them clean and quick to read.
- Middle (32–256): bigger, more detailed things.
- Big (512–1024): exciting, rare things.
- Finale (2048): the goal of the game. The most special tile, usually on a darker or richer background.
- Bonus (4096–16384): a secret “after the win” round for great players. These have a gold frame and extra sparkles.

Each tile should be a different object (not the same thing in different colours), and the order should make sense to a child: small → big, simple → fancy.

What to deliver

☐ 14 tiles (2 to 16384), one file each
☐ Win card art: the finale “full” version (like the full fruit basket)
☐ Lose card art: the “empty” version (like the empty basket with an ant)
☐ A small symbol for the theme button (simple outline, see page 4)
☐ Colour picks: page background, accent and button colours
☐ Names: theme name, a name for each tile, win and lose headlines

File format

- Best: SVG (vector), square artboard
- Also fine: PNG, 1024 × 1024 px, transparent background for the card art
- Name files by value: `tile-0002.png`, `tile-0004.png` … `tile-16384.png`, `win.png`, `lose.png`
- Each tile includes its own background colour (full square, no transparency)

The style

Match the look of the existing themes so all themes feel like one game:

- Kawaii and soft: rounded shapes, chubby proportions, no sharp or scary details.
- Outlines: one plum outline colour ■ #6B3F6E, about 1.5% of the tile width (≈15 px on a 1024 px tile), rounded ends and corners.
- Faces: most tiles have a tiny face: two dark dot eyes with a white highlight, a small smile, pink blush cheeks.
- Shading: soft gradients and one white shine highlight. No heavy textures.
- Backgrounds: a pale pastel per tile with a soft white glow behind the object and a few tiny sparkles. Colours step gently through the rainbow from tile to tile.
- Small screens: tiles show at about 70–110 px on phones. Check every drawing at that size; it must still read at a glance.
- One clear object per tile, centred, with a soft shadow underneath.
- Bonus tiles: gold frame around the edge plus sparkle stars.

Example: Fruit Picnic

Example: Spooky Picnic

Tile sheet

Sketch each tile in its slot, and write its name and background colour underneath. The pink corner is where the game shows the tile's number, so keep it clear. Keep the drawing inside the dashed box. A full-size guide is in `tile-template.svg` / `tile-template.png`.

2 SMALL

Name:

Background colour:

4 SMALL

Name:

Background colour:

8 SMALL

Name:

Background colour:

16 SMALL

Name:

Background colour:

32 MIDDLE

Name:

Background colour:

64 MIDDLE

Name:

Background colour:

128 MIDDLE

Name:

Background colour:

256 MIDDLE

Name:

Background colour:

512 BIG

Name:

Background colour:

1024 BIG

Name:

Background colour:

2048 FINALE

Name:

Background colour:

4096 BONUS

Name:

Background colour:

8192 BONUS

Name:

Background colour:

16384 BONUS

Name:

Background colour:

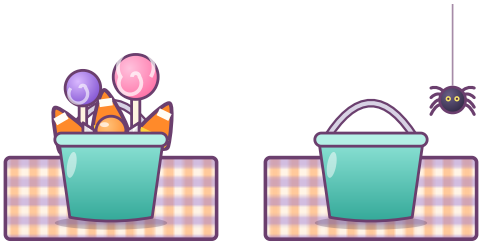

Win and lose cards

When the player reaches the finale, a celebration card shows the “full” version of the theme’s container. When they run out of moves, it shows the “empty” version. Shown at about 150 × 150 px, transparent background.

Fruit Picnic examples

Spooky Picnic examples

Your win art

full / celebrating

Your lose art

empty, with a small cute detail

Theme button symbol

simple outline icon, like the pumpkin or cherries

Words and colours

Theme name (e.g. “Spooky Picnic”)

Win headline (e.g. “Sweet victory!”, “Spooktacular!”)

Lose headline (e.g. “Picnic’s over!”, “Out of treats!”)

Page background

Accent (title, New game button)

4 small button colours